Bills introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to regulate marriages of children amongst the Hindus was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 22nd March 1925:—

We, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which Paper Nos. 1 & 15. The Bill to regulate marriages of children amongst the Hindus was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers thereto and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by an amendment thereto.

The object of the Bill as introduced in the Legislature was to impose restraint upon the solemnisation of child marriages, and the method adopted was, broadly speaking, that of declaring all marriages of boys or girls below a certain age to be voidable. The Bill has been circulated under the orders of Government and has elicited a strong expression of feeling that it is objectionable, both on religious and on legal grounds, to interfere with the validity of a marriage which has been performed. In our opinion, these objections are at present insuperable, and we have accordingly cast upon a suggestion, which has been widely made, that the Bill should effect the purpose of restricting child marriages, not by declaring such marriages to be void, but by imposing punishments upon those who participate in them.

We, therefore, consider the task of amending the Bill with this object in view. To begin with, we considered the propriety of our action in so materially amending a Bill whose principle had been accepted by the Legislative Assembly in referring it to us, and we came to the conclusion that the principle of the Bill which had been endorsed by the Legislative Assembly was the principle that child marriages should be restricted by legislation, and that it was open to as to vary the method of imposing the restriction from that contained in the Bill to another which is substantially in accord with public opinion and seems to ourselves the only method which is at present expedient. Nevertheless, we do recognize that the introduction in House of Commons of what is formally a new Bill is an essential step, and we desire that further steps in the Bill should be undertaken deliberately and only after public opinion has been fully studied in its details.

The Bill, as introduced, applied to Hindus, Jains, Sikhs, Buddhists, Arya Samajists and Buddhists and was a measure relating to the validity of marriages. As we propose to amend the Bill by making it a measure imposing criminal penalties on participants in a child marriage, it seems justifiable that it should be restricted to those particular communities, since child marriages do occur, though not so frequently, in other communities. We propose, therefore, that the amended Bill should be general in its scope and apply to all classes and communities in British India.

The first provision which required our decision, is also the most important, namely, the determination of the ages of boys and of girls below which participants in their marriages should be punishable. After much discussion we decided that this age for boys should be eighteen years. For girls we considered the ages of eleven, twelve and fourteen, and finally, came to the conclusion that we should adopt the age of fourteen. We recognize that these ages will be regarded by many people, whose opinion is entitled to great weight, as being too high; but we also recognize that there is a strong body of opinion, particularly among those who advocate social reform, which will not willingly accept any lower age. We also gave weight to the consideration that there are communities in India among whom the marriage of girls under fourteen years of age is infrequent, and that the backward elements in these communities might regard the fixing of a lower age limit as a stigma as recognition by the State of that age as being a suitable age for marriage, and even as encouragement to adopt it.

These decisions, that the limiting age for a boy should be eighteen and for a girl fourteen, are embodied in sub-clause (a) of clause 2 of the Bill as amended by us.

The next important principle to be determined was the interpretation of the phrase "participants in a child marriage"; in other words, which of the possibly numerous persons in any way connected with a child marriage should be liable to punishment. We decided that the following classes should come within the penal provisions of the Bill, namely:—

- (a) male adults who marry young girls;
- (b) persons who perform any essential ceremony of a child marriage; and
- (c) persons and guardians who procure or permit a child marriage.

Our decisions regarding (b) and (c) are embodied in clauses 3 and 4 of the Bill.

Our decisions as regards (a) were not so simple and were arrived at only after much discussion. It began with us concluding that it is not expedient to punish a woman who marries a young boy, as cases of this sort are rare, and in most of them the woman is likely to be so young that she is entirely under the control of her parents and should not be made criminally liable. Further, even in such marriage the new Act will not be inoperative, as the other contracting party will be a child, and the guardian of the child and the persons who celebrate the marriage will be punishable.

The first point to be decided as regards male adults was the age at which they should be regarded as responsible for their own actions and therefore criminally liable if they contract a child marriage. We decided that the ordinary age of majority was a suitable limit in these cases; but we also recognised that young men between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one are still, under the influence of their parents in a considerable extent, and we considered it inexpedient that these boys should be sent to jail for undertaking a course of action in which they may not have been entirely free agents. We decided, therefore, that where a boy between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one marries a child he shall be liable in fact, and that where a man above the age of twenty-one marries a child he shall incur the full penalty provided for offences under the Act. We have, therefore, provided separately in clause 2 for a fine of Rs 1,000 for offenders above the age of eighteen years and under twenty-one; and in clause 3 we have made provision that imprisonment shall not be imposed on these offenders under any circumstances. Clause 4 relates to offenders above the age of twenty-one years.

The next point which we decided was the extent of the punishment to be provided generally for offences under the Act, and this we have fixed at simple imprisonment up to one month, fine up to one thousand rupees, or both. These punishments appear in clauses 5, 6 and 7 of the amended Bill.

Three doubts arose from the substantive law contained in the Bill. We have added to them various provisions of procedure which are designed to avoid the risk of frivolous prosecutions and harassment. We consider these provisions to be very important safeguards as a measure of social reform directed against a custom so long established and so widely prevalent as that of child marriage. It may be that in future these provisions may be abrogated and the penal provisions of the Act allowed to operate in the normal way, but for the immediate future at least, we are strongly of opinion that we must go carefully.

In pursuance of this policy we have provided in clause 8 that only Courts of Presidency Magistrates and District Magistrates shall have jurisdiction in cases concerning child marriages. In clause 9 we have provided that cognitions can be taken only upon complaint made within one year of the celebration of the marriage. In clause 10 we have laid down that the Court, which it dismisses the complaint, shall in all cases make a preliminary inquiry under section 304 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1885. In clause 11 we have added a provision requiring the complainant to give security for the payment of any compensation that may be awarded against him under section 323 of the same Code.

In view of the altered machinery of the Bill we have re-drafted the long title and the preamble to the Bill. In sub-clause (1) of clause 1 we have also re-drafted the short title, and in sub-clause (2) we have provided that the Bill shall extend to all classes in the whole of British India. In sub-clause (3), in accord with the policy of revision which we strongly advocate, we have provided that the Act shall commence into force on the 1st day of April 1930, by which date we trust the provisions of the Bill will be widely known among all classes and communities. To this end we recommend that Government should take exceptional measures in publishing the Act as finally passed.

The Bill, as introduced, was published in the Gazette of India dated the 5th February 1927.

The Bill, though it still carries out its original purpose of imposing restraint upon child marriages, has been so materially altered by us that in our opinion it requires republishing. We propose that no further step should be taken to pass the Bill in the present session of the Legislative Assembly and that between now and the next session the Bill should be published as widely as possible in English and in all the important vernaculars. We desire to emphasize strongly this need for deliberation and wide publication.

MINUTES OF DISSENT.

I am glad that the Bill has been voted very much on the lines I suggested when it was considered by the Assembly. But I do not agree with the majority of my colleagues on two important points. The proposal to make marriages of girls below the age of 14 years punishable by law will rightly raise much opposition among the large body of orthodox Hindus. I urged that the age should be fixed at 11 so that a law the need for which is pressing might be passed with the unanimous support of all sections of the community. If even 12 is fixed as the age marriages below which shall be punishable, it is possible that a section of orthodox opinion may be reconciled to it, but in my opinion, in view of the fact that marriage is a religious sacrament among Hindus, and in view of the belief which has prevailed on the question of the age of marriage among them for a very long time, to make a marriage above the age of 12 and below the age of 14 punishable by law will be utterly wrong. I think we should leave the raising of the age of the marriage of girls beyond 12 to the greater spread of education and of ideas of social and physical well-being among the people. Their efforts are already visible and should not be ignored.

I am also opposed to imprisonment being awarded as a punishment to any person who offends against the provisions of the proposed law. I expect that if the Government and the public will despatch to him a knowledge of the provisions of the Bill made variously known among the people, the fear of the infliction of a fine which may amount up to a thousand rupees and the apprehension of being exposed to a prosecution, will act as effective deterrent, to prevent people from celebrating child marriages in contravention of the provisions of the proposed law. In any event, I would not provide imprisonment as an alternative punishment for the first few years of the new legislation.

MADAN MOHAN MALAVIYA.

I wish to make it clear that, while Government accept and support the principle of making the celebration of child marriage a penal offence, they must reserve judgment on some of the provisions of the Bill until they are in possession of the results of the consultation of public opinion since invited in the report.

J. CHERRAR.

I agree, subject to the insertion of the article "the" before the word "marriage" in the 1th line of clause 3.

M. R. JAYAKAR.

I agree, subject to the following propositions—

- (1) In clause 3 (a) the age of the female child should be raised to "under sixteen";
- (2) Power should be taken to compel the registration of all marriages;
- (3) Punishment for those who perform child marriages should be deterrent.

D. CHAMAN LALL.

I think 14 years will be considered too high to be the minimum marriageable age for girls by a large section of the Hindu community. I am aware of the fact that communities like the Mohammedans, the Christians, the Parsis and even a considerable section of the Hindu community in all of whom this Bill has now been made applicable, will regard the deduction of the legal age for marriage of girls below 14 years as a retrograde movement and a possible incentive to reduce the age of marriage in their respective societies. But I am also not oblivious of the very strong opinion in favour of pre-puberty marriage, held by a very large section of the Hindu community. They look upon marriage as a sacrament; and generally speaking, to them, the celebration of marriage does not necessarily mean the consummation of marriage.

We see that the Hindu Mahasabha having within its fold various sections of the Hindu community from 15 years as the minimum age for the marriage of girls and to even the All-India Gurukul Dharma Mahasabha representing the most orthodox section of the Hindu community. His resolution No. 7 passed at its sitting held at Alibabad in January 1926, under the presidency of Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya whose translation into English will read thus:—

7. (a) "In the opinion of the Sanatana Dharma Mahasabha no marriage of a Hindu boy should take place till he is 16 years of age.

(b) The Mahasabha exhorts the Hindu community that the marriage of girls should never be celebrated before they have attained upon their 16th year."

But in the subsequent resolution No. 8, it clearly indicates that the consummation of marriage should not take place before the girl attains her 16th year.

The translation of the resolution is as follows:—

8. "In the opinion of this Sanatana Dharma Mahasabha, it is extremely necessary in order to make the community physically and religiously strong, that even when the wedding ceremony has been performed the consummation of marriage should not take place till the girl has attained the age of 16 years."

This measure is the first effect of its kind and I am of opinion that the line of least resistance should be adopted in this matter by all those who work the cause. The fixing of minimum age limit has by no means a blinding effect on the higher age. For instance, we see that in several Western countries, the age of consent is much below the age at which marriages usually take place. That being so, I think that it is not proper that the views of such a large number of people should not be ignored and that the minimum marriageable age for girls should be fixed at twelve years. If any legal protection be deemed necessary in respect of the consummation of marriage, that might be afforded to the girls by further raising the age of consent. Of course it might be argued that the age of consent clause of the Indian Penal Code is a dead-letter. But it must also be recognized that any social legislation if it has to succeed must not be so drastic as to make it wholly unacceptable to a large number of people. I hope, therefore, that those who advocate the raising of the minimum marriageable age of girls higher than 12, would appreciate the difficulties underlying the acceptance and be content with fixing the minimum marriageable age of girls at 12 years. We should work to see the measures of success that the piece of legislation achieves in this modified form.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on 21st March 1928 :—

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY BILL No. 18 OF 1928.

A Bill to remove certain doubts regarding the dissolution of marriages of persons professing the Hindu religion.

WHEREAS it is expedient to remove certain doubts regarding the dissolution of marriages of persons professing the Hindu religion in certain cases; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Hindu Marriages Dissolution Bill, 1928.

(2) It applies to all Hindus, and extends to the whole of British India.

2. Notwithstanding any law or custom to the contrary, a Hindu wife shall be entitled to obtain a declaration of the invalidity of her marriage or its dissolution for any of the following reasons, namely :—

- (a) Impotency of the husband ;
- (b) Insanity ;
- (c) The fact that he was suffering from venereal disease at the time of marriage.

3. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to restrict the rights existing of dissolution of marriages otherwise existing.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Under the Hindu law the main object of marriage is the procreation of a male offspring. It was so necessary that that result was obtained by the practice of Sayag, which provided the wife with a companion when the husband himself was infertile or impotent. As that practice has fallen into disrepute, it is necessary that some remedy should be provided to such persons who are married to such persons who are infertile or impotent, and who are unable to obtain a male offspring. This is all the more necessary, since under Hindu law both the husband suffering from any of these disabilities and his wife are excluded from all rights in property. It is, therefore, hoped that this measure will give the Hindu wife some relief in which she is so deeply entitled. The Bill is not intended to introduce any innovation in the Hindu law of marriage. If passed it will have the effect of merely retaining the old law laid down by Manu and Yashasth whose texts are of the most revered authorities in Hindu law.

"Manu: XII-8. The man must undergo an examination with regard to his virility; when the fact of his virility has been proved beyond doubt, he shall obtain the maiden (but not otherwise).

Th. 15. For the wife of one who kills his enemy, or whose enemy is devoted of strength, though they may have discharged their marital duty, another husband must be procured after she has waited for half a year.

Th. 16. Women have been created for the sake of propagation, the wife being the field, and the husband the giver of the seed. The field must be given to him who has sown. His wife has no seed in secondary to possess the field.

Th. 24. When a bridegroom goes abroad after having espoused a maiden, let the maiden wait till her menses have passed three times, and then choose another bridegroom.

Th. 37. Malice, loss of caste, impotency, manry, to have forsaken his relatives (affliction with a chronic or fatal disease, and deformity): these are the faults of a widow.

Th. 42. When her husband is lost or dead, when he has become a religious ascetic, when he is impotent, and when he has been expelled from caste: these are the few cases of legal necessity, in which a woman may be justified in taking another husband."

[Manu: vii-4, 16, 19, 24, 37, 47, 6-8. 40. E. 4 pages 168, et seq.]

Yashasth-20. And she is called remarried who having an impotent, unchaste or mad husband takes another lord. (Yashasth XVII-20, 14-8. E. E-95').

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 24th March 1926:—

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY BILL No. 18 OF 1926.

A Bill to alter the order in which certain heirs of a deceased Hindu dying intestate are entitled to succeed to his estate.

WHEREAS it is expedient to alter the order in which certain heirs of a deceased Hindu dying intestate are entitled to succeed to his estate; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Hindu Law of Inheritance (Amendment) Act, 1926.

(2) It extends to persons subject to the Law of the Mithlakare country who, but for the passing of this Act, would have been subject to the said law, whether as a permanent citizen or not, in respect of the provisions herein enacted; but it applies only to the case of the property of Hindus, not being held in coparcenary and not having been disposed of by will, to which the succession opens after the thirtieth day of July 1928.

2. In this Act,—

(a) "Hindu" means a person of the male sex governed by the Mithlakare law of inheritance;

Enactment,

application.

Definition.

(4) This does not embrace a very large number of blood relations, viz., the son's son's daughter, the brother's daughter, the sister's daughter, who still remain outside the pale of heritable descent. But the Bill being merely a revival of the Bill already passed by the Assembly it is not proposed to enlarge upon its provisions for the present, though the whole law of Hindu inheritance is unsatisfactory and does not follow the line of affinity and affection, placing as it does agnate kinsmen however remote above all cognate relations however near.

(5) The Bill will not make any serious inroad upon the law as understood in the Province subject to Mayasid, nor will it seriously affect the law as understood in the Province of Madras where female heirs are allowed to rank but only after all the male heirs are ascertained.

(6) The previous Bill passed by this Assembly was limited only to the two Provinces of Madras and United Provinces, but the reason for this limitation is not understood any more it clear in the Council of State who gave it as one of their reasons for postponing its consideration. It is hoped that the next Bill intended to rectify a glaring injustice in one's nearest relations will receive the same support as its predecessor and that this time it will find a place on the Statute-book.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 22nd March 1888:—

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY BILL No. 20 OF 1888.

A Bill to provide for giving certain foreign Life Insurance Companies, doing business in India, on a footing of equality with others, in certain respects, by withdrawing certain special facilities now given to the former.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for putting certain foreign Life Insurance Companies, doing business in India, on a footing of equality with others, in certain respects, by withdrawing certain special facilities now given to the former; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Life Assurance Companies (Amendment) Act, 1888.

(2) It shall extend to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall come into force on 1st day of January 1889.

2. Section 33 of the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1812, VI of 1812 is hereby repealed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Section 33 of the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1812, exempts certain Insurance Companies from the operation of several sections of the Act, viz., (6), (7), (8), (9), (10), (11), (12), (13), (14), (15) and (16). The requirements in these sections are wholesome; and there is not sufficient reason why certain Insurance Companies doing business in India should be exempted from their operation.

cheaply because these Companies do business and have an office in the United Kingdom as well as in India. The present exemption creates unequal conditions as between Indian and Foreign Insurance Companies. The interests also of the people availing themselves of the system of Life Insurance will be better served by subjecting foreign companies doing business in India to the requirements in the above-mentioned sections which are intended to protect those interests.
